Bil Musa's *YOUNG ADULTS is playing onboard this month. We spoke to the singer-songwriter about the inspiration behind the album and why it is about growing up.

How did you get into singing and songwriting?

Ever since I started playing the piano, I always wrote songs. So, songwriting was something that I've always done, it's just that I did not write down or record any of my songs until I was much older. Singing is also something I only realised I was into at the end of secondary school. I tried doing covers and mash-ups for friends and they sort of encouraged me to write and sing more.

Who are your musical influences?

I'm very much into songs that evoke a lot of emotions in a listener. So I would say Adele, Sam Smith, Lana Del Rey and Jhene Aiko. At the same time, I also like songs that are cool and fun or have a lot of character. I'm very into Dua Lipa's work right now.

What was the inspiration behind the album, Young Adults?

Young Adults is the perfect example of "art imitates life". It's inspired by young adults – myself, my friends, cousins around my age, my peers, the people I work with – everyone I surround myself with and their struggles with commitment, relationships, money, responsibilities, and transitioning into an adult. It can get really tough and sometimes you feel like you can't talk to anyone about it but when you write songs about it, it really helps as a form of self-expression.

You've often been compared to Yuna. How do you feel about that?

I'll take it as a positive thing to be compared to someone who has made a name for herself, not only in Malaysia but overseas as well, especially despite having to battle so many stigmas. I listened to her songs when I was in school and I thought she was great. I still do.

Aside from your music career, you also juggle other jobs. How do you balance between the two?

This is a question I struggle to answer! Most of the time, my head is just above the water but I'm surviving. It gets overwhelming at times, considering I still have to spend time with my family and friends, maintain a social life and try to keep fit in the middle of it all. It's mostly a mental game, and to be honest, I like being busy. People who know me well will know this because I'm a restless person. I just have to keep my focus and try my best to be on top of things. InshaAllah, it will all be worth it!

THE TIME IS NOW - CRAIG DAVID

The Time Is Now is Craig David's seventh studio album and features an array of guest appearances by the likes of JP Cooper, Bastille and AJ Tracey. The album contains notably less U.K. garage than its predecessor and instead features trendy and contemporary sounds from the charts. Of this album, David says, "This is authentic me, doing what I love, just like I did when I was an unknown artist."
